Mathilda Chandelier

The Mathilda Chandelier has a frame made of cast brass in a matte gold finish with markings on their surfaces that look as if they have been smoothed in place with a palette knife. This brings the fixture a brutalist feel and adds extra texture to the design. The shades on the eight-light chandelier, made of milky white glass, slide into pronounced prongs that make the sconce look jewelry-like. Designed by Marjorie Skoura with a profile inspired by an antique, the gold chandelier is dimmable
